"Loud noise" complaint leads to arrest of Elba man on multiple charges, including drug offenses

by Linda Hodge, Editor

A complaint of loud noise to the Elba Police Department last week eventually led to the arrest of an Elba man on multiple charges.

Police Chief Freddy Hanchey said officers were investigating a complaint of loud noise on Lee Street when they discovered evidence of other offenses.

"Citizens reporting things like this loud noise complaint, suspicious activity and/or persons can many times lead to the arrests for other, more serious, activities," Hanchey said. "This is why it is important for citizens to let us know when suspicious things are taking place in their neighborhoods."

Hanchey said the suspect was charged with violating the city's noise ordinance from this complaint. However, he also was charged with several other crimes that led to his arrest.

Antonio D. Hill, age 24, of Lee Street, Elba, was arrested and charged with possession of marijuana — first degree, receiving stolen property — third degree, possession of drug paraphernalia, and possession of a firearm without a permit.

He was transported to the Coffee County Jail following his arrest. He later was released on bond.

News Brief:

Elba Police investigated a report of a break-in of an occupied dwelling last week, and that investigation led to the arrest of an Elba woman.

Police Chief Freddy Hanchey said this investigation led to the arrest of Shunta Sams, age 36, of Jackson St., Elba. She was charged with burglary — second degree.

FIRE DESTROYS HOME...The Elba Fire Department responded Saturday evening, Feb. 2, to this structure fire at 14602 Hwy. 87 S, the home of Betty Coon of Elba. Firefighters were on scene several hours Saturday night battling this massive blaze, and Elba received mutual aide from New Brockton firefighters. The home was a total loss, but fortunately, everyone at the residence reportedly got out of the house without injury. It appears an electrical issue may have started this house fire, but family members said earlier this week they were still awaiting the official word.

Elba ranks an overall "B" on state's prototype report card

by Linda Hodge, Editor

The state department of education released numbers on its prototype [first model] for the new report card system to evaluate schools.

"This thing is brand new," said Elba City Schools superintendent Chris Moseley. "Nobody knew what to expect. I was actually excited [with our standings] when I saw where everybody around us placed as well."

Most schools/systems in the Wiregrass area scored an overall B on the report card, and some had a C.

The Elba School System was among those rating a B for this prototype report card.

"It is important to remember it is still a prototype," Moseley said. "They [state department] know there are going to be changes to it."

He said making changes to the prototype is inevitable due to a few factors.

The Elba superintendent said the report card is something that has been a main topic for superintendents across the state ever since the state began working on it. He said there are things the state did with this prototype that officials know the superintendents across the state do not agree with how things are being calculated, and that in itself makes way for some changes to be made to make this report card system better for everyone.

"It's our grade [Elba's B], but it is a prototype," Moseley said. "It does give us a starting point on things, however."

Moseley said the biggest question across the state is the growth component of the report card. He said as leaders in the school systems, superintendents and principals need to know more about how these figures are calculated.

He said the answers to that question are yet to be answered.

Moseley said getting these answers would allow the school leaders to better prepare ahead of time and get ready for this before the next report cards are evaluated.

"Overall, we are in the same boat as everybody else," Moseley said. "There are areas we need to work on, and we are going to continue to work on them."

System-wide he said the Elba schools stayed consistent with achievement.

Moseley did note he was super excited to see the academic growth number for Elba High School, which was above the state average. He said out of a possible 30 percent rating, the high school got 26.83 in academic growth.

"As educators, we want achievement and growth to go up," Moseley said. "But, we are here for the whole student [not just the areas rated in the report card system]."

Another area Moseley said superintendents would like to see change from the prototype report card is the absenteeism category.

Coffee County Schools rates overall "B" on state report card

by Linda Hodge, Editor

During the Coffee County Board of Education meeting Thursday evening, Feb. 1, Superintendent Terry Weeks briefly discussed the system/school Report Card from the Alabama State Department of Education in which information had been made public earlier that day.

Weeks said the figures and numbers for the Report Card were based on information from the 2016 school year. He also compared this to numbers the system/schools is seeing from 2017 to give the board an idea of where things are headed with future reports.

Weeks said the Coffee County School System's final grade on the state released Report Card last week was an overall B.

"This is not where our system needs to be, and we know it," Weeks said. "However, based on data we are seeing, this should improve [with the next report card]."

Accountability indicators factored in to this Report Card grading include academic achievement, academic growth, graduation rate, college and career readiness, and chronic absenteeism.

New Brockton students deliver technology infusion presentations

by Linda Hodge, Editor

Several elementary and high school students from New Brockton attended the Coffee County Board of Education meeting held Thursday evening, Feb. 1, and they participated in the meeting through a Technology Infusion presentation.

A few months back, the board entertained presentations from students from Zion Chapel and Kinston in regards to how technology is changing the classroom. Last Thursday night, the technology infusion presentation went even further when the New Brockton students made it interactive.

Technology coordinator Heatherly Smith said the interactive presentation was to show the board exactly how the teachers and students are infusing technology provided to them in the classroom via Chrome books and various programs.

New Brockton second grade teacher Joni Jones was joined by two of her students, Ariana Smith and Ella Kate McPhaul. They discussed several different programs the students are able to utilize via the Chrome books for vocabulary, math, etc.

Sixth grade teacher Lisa

New Brockton Elementary teacher Joni Jones is shown with two of her second grade students, Ariana Smith and Ella Kate McPhaul, discussing various ways they infuse technology into the classroom. This was part of a large presentation made to board members on technology infusion by New Brockton elementary and high school students last Thursday evening.

Murphy was joined by students Joshua Gutierrez and Katie French. They had a very in-depth presentation regarding the programs used in the classroom. At one point, they had board members login and participate in a game challenge that is used in the classroom to test students' knowledge on various subjects being studied.

"Lord, keep Your arm around my shoulder and Your hand over my mouth." - Unknown

Natalie Wood, beautiful Natalie Wood, thinking of her still makes us swoon all these years after the tragic death of this talented movie star. The amazing thing about her death is that law enforcement officers are still investigating her drowning. It is no longer called "accidental" and is now officially "undetermined". We never wanted to believe the stories surrounding her drowning (or even her being gone). However there is no need to slander living beings, without some good evidence, just to avenge her death. It will not bring her back and could ruin the lives of innocent people. The lone positive we get from her dying as a young woman is that anyone with a memory of Natalie has a mental picture of a pretty woman with a beautiful smile . . . who was a wonderful actress.

We recently read some challenging rules for a happy marriage. They are reproduced here for those of you who may need them as much as yours truly does. Actually we do alright in a few of the "top ten" and are well into our second fifty years of marriage but suspect there are some improvements that could be considered insurance. One in the area that can use improvement on our part is the idea of letting your spouse win an argument . . . well IF she is right!

Rev. Jay Tenney, pastor of Tunnel Hill, (Ga) Tunnel Hill United Methodist Church with advice on getting married and staying married -

Tenney's Top Ten Rules for a Happy Marriage

10. Never yell at each other unless the house is on fire.
9. If one of you has to win an argument, let it be your spouse.
8. Never bring up mistakes from the past.
7. If you have to criticize, do it lovingly.
6. Find ways to bless your spouse every day.
5. Whenever you are with your spouse, be all there.
4. Compliment your spouse in front of others.
3. When you screw up, admit it, ask for forgiveness and move on.
2. Factor in time to simply have fun together.
1. Keep God in the center of your relationship.

The folks in Washington are again talking about a big push to follow up on a campaign promise by then presidential candidate Donald Trump. He correctly noted the need for a massive spending on infrastructure upgrades, all across the USA and Americans seemed to agree. Now the problem is how to fund this trillion-dollar dream. The initial answer is the Highway Trust Fund but therein lies a problem. Even at the present spending rates that pile of gasoline tax money will be gone by as early as 2020, even without the added spending. Part of the problem there is that lawmakers have found ways to spend money from the gasoline tax for things other than highways - some say as much as 25% annually is on pet projects! About the only answer is added gasoline (or something) taxes. Long range that idea has a flaw in the massive predicted increase in electric cars that don't use gasoline, and thus no gasoline tax. It would take something like a "mileage tax", based on the numbers taken annually from the automobile mileage recording itself at tag buying time. That will take lots of selling to keep from being dead before it starts. Even if mileage taxing gets into the talking stages, expect the electric car folks to mount a massive, and expensive, lobbying effort to kill the proposal.

Roby kicks off 2018 campaign with war chest

U.S. Representative Martha Roby (R-AL), who is running for reelection in Alabama's Second Congressional District, raised $826,000 in 2017, according to the campaign's Federal Election Committee (FEC) year-end report released today.

The impressive numbers in this report position her campaign well for the 2018 election season and put her on pace to raise more than $1 million before the Republican primary.

Roby raised $236,000 in the fourth quarter of 2017, which is generally considered a slow fundraising period in an off-cycle year. She enters the election year with $568,000 cash-on-hand.

"I'm so grateful for the support and encouragement I've received in the district and appreciate the opportunity to share our conservative message across AL-02 during this campaign," Representative Roby said. "Our team is energized, and these solid fundraising numbers give us the resources we need to hit the ground running and have a strong political operation in 2018."

LETTER TO THE EDITOR

The Future Belongs to the Brave

The truth is the Alabama of today is one that our grandparents wouldn't recognize.

For more than two decades, Alabama has been landing one significant economic development project after another, transforming the state into an epicenter for the aerospace, automotive, and defense industries.

Companies looking where to locate are attracted to our state's business-friendly labor policies and focus on workforce development. Alabama's right-to-work status has been a tremendous advantage, as Alabama is one of only 11 states that has constitutionally protected the right to work.

However, the recent U.S. Senate special election and the spotlight it shone on Alabama threatened to bring the advancements of the last 25 years to a screeching halt. The Republican candidate, Roy Moore, with a knack for incendiary comments, made him - and Alabama - fodder for national news and international attention.

Alabama U.S. Senator Richard Shelby announced publicly that while not voting for the Democratic candidate, he would be writing in a "distinguished Republican." Now, supporters of Judge Moore are blaming Senator Shelby - and not their candidate - for the lopsided loss. With financing from an out-of-state investor, Moore supporters are seeking to have Senator Shelby censured by the Alabama Republican Party.

The Business Council of Alabama and its leadership will mobilize and energize the business community to oppose all efforts to adopt this negative resolution that works against the business community, the economic well-being of Alabama, and our No. 1 advocate in Washington, D.C. - Senator Richard Shelby.

I have publicly urged the Republican Party to adopt a resolution that commends Senator Shelby for his service to Alabama. If you look at the economic development projects in Alabama, there is one constant: Senator Richard Shelby. He deserves better than a fringe element of the GOP attacking him by not telling the truth - seeking revenge for their losing campaign.

The recent announcements of Montgomery landing the F-35 Lightning mission and Huntsville gaining the joint Toyota-Mazda facility goes to Senator Shelby and his unwavering courage and leadership to stand his ground for Alabama. In my opinion, without his principled stand, the Toyota-Mazda plant would have gone to North Carolina - especially if Mr. Moore had been elected.

Let's put the past behind us and move on. If we don't, the business community in Alabama needs to determine the best way to invest its resources with organizations and movements that will move Alabama forward...period, starting today!

New Brockton high school teacher Meagan Harrelson also invited several students to explain the program they use and 'like' to perform classroom tasks. The high school students making presentation were 9th graders Anna Jones, Rayle Home, Frankie Deak, Olivia Blackerby and Breanna Wiggins; and 10th graders Kade Brunson and Wyatt Woodall.

The teachers and students all extended thanks to board members for supplying the schools with Chrome books to allow them to infuse technology into their daily lessons. They said they really enjoy using these programs, and the students all seemed excited to discuss the different ways they can use this to advance their education.

Upon the recommendation of Superintendent Terry Weeks, board members voted during last Thursday's meeting to purchase five new school buses for the system.

Weeks said it is the objective of the school system to keep all its buses under the 10-year fleet renewal window in order to receive fleet renewal monies from the state on the buses. With that in mind, he said the system has five 2013-year model buses that would no longer be under that 10-year window as of November 2018. Therefore, he recommended the board act now to order five new buses before November.

Weeks said Transportation South agreed to honor the bus bid price from last year again at a price of $88,075 per bus. This keeps the board from having to re-bid for buses this year.

The superintendent's recommendation was to go ahead and order 4 of the 5 new buses now with Fiscal Year 2018 monies. Then, as soon as Fiscal Year 2019 monies are available in October, he recommended purchasing the fifth new bus then to get all ordered before November.

Although three board members were unable to be at last week's meeting, there was a quorum and those in attendance voted unanimously to approve this recommendation to purchase five new buses.

Due to a potential conflict with the AASB meeting in March, board members voted to change the time for the March regular meeting to 12 noon rather than the normal 5:30 p.m. Therefore, the next regular meeting for the Coffee County Board of Education will be Thursday, March 1, at 12 noon.

University of Alabama vessel sticker now available to Alabama boat owners

The state of Alabama is now offering University of Alabama collegiate vessel stickers to boat owners.

The new vessel sticker became available in January, and proceeds from the purchases will be used to fund scholarships at UA.

Following years of success with UA car tags, the alumni association first looked to expand to motorcycle tags. On June 8, 2015, the UA Collegiate Tag Motorcycle Bill was passed, and the state started selling motorcycle tags in early 2016.

According to David Wilson, director of alumni funds with the UA National Alumni Association, UA car and motorcycle tags will raise around $5 million in scholarship assistance this year.

"For many years, UA supporters have displayed the tag with pride on the back of their cars and motorcycles," said Wilson. "Now they get to transfer that pride to our lakes and oceans."

The vessel sticker will cost $50 above the normal registration charges and is available for purchase at county Department of Revenue offices.

SCHOOL BOARD MEMBER APPRECIATION MONTH...Coffee County Schools superintendent Terry Weeks noted last Thursday, Feb. 1, during the board's monthly meeting that January was School Board Member Appreciation Month. He said this was a good time to salute the work of board members. Weeks thanked each of the Coffee County school board members for their dedication to the schools, and he presented each with a certificate of appreciation. Above, Weeks (left) presents a certificate of appreciation to board member Galen McWaters.

Rep. John Lewis spoke Friday, Feb. 2, at the Leadership Conference Celebrating African American History Month at Troy University. He said it is incumbent on Americans to do all in their power to ensure that young people in this country receive the best possible education.

Congressman says education key to unlocking path forward during Black History Leadership Conference in Troy

Rep. John Lewis on Friday, Feb. 2, said it is incumbent on Americans to do all in their power to ensure that young people in this country receive the best possible education.

Speaking to the Leadership Conference Celebrating African American History Month at Troy University, Lewis called education the key to unlocking the best possible future for the nation.

"We must see that all of our young people receive the best education possible for it is our young people that will lead us," he said. "It is our young people who will get us to the point where we can redeem the soul of American and create that beloved community where we lay down the burden of race. We can do it, and we will do it."

Lewis said Americans must go forward together, learning to live together.

"We must learn to live together as brothers and sisters, if not, as Dr. King suggested, we will perish as fools," he said. "We have to look after each other and take care of each other, and we must never, ever give up on each other. It doesn't matter if we are black or white, Latino American, Asian American or Native American, we are all one people, one family. We all live in the same house, and it is not just an American house, but it is a world house. We must never hate for, as Dr. King stated, hate is much too heavy a burden to bear."

Lewis encouraged the audience to being willing to stand up, speak up and speak out to bring about an end to injustice.

"When you see something that isn't fair, isn't right or just, you have a moral obligation to stand up and say 'and do something,'" he said. "You must not be quiet. Leaders must be the headlights and not the taillights. Don't be afraid to lead. Don't be afraid if someone tells you that you are not prepared or not ready or tells you to wait until it's your time. The time is always right to do what is right."

Lewis said he truly believes the country will "get it right."

"Don't give up. Keep the faith. Keep your eyes on the prize and be hopeful and optimistic," he said. "Help our children. Help save our country. We don't need to go backwards. We need to go forward, and we need to go forward together."

Friday night's address was one of several activities welcoming Lewis back to Pike County, where he was born in 1940. On Saturday, the City of Troy honored Lewis during a ceremony at the Troy Public Library, including a proclamation of John Lewis Day in the city, the unveiling of a historic marker and portrait and a screening of the PBS documentary, "John Lewis: Get in the Way."

Launched in 2002 by Troy University and the City of Troy, the Leadership Conference Celebrating African American History Month is intended to promote dialogue that fosters multicultural collaboration and equip diverse leaders with tools to better serve their organizations and communities. This year's theme is "Change Agents: Civically Engaged, Academically Oriented and Financially Capable."

First Assembly of God

THE GREATEST LOVE

When people mention February, some think of cold weather. Others think of the month with the fewest days. Those who are wise remember Valentine's Day. So, this week and next, we will look at applications of love.

Today, let's consider the greatest love - God's love. We can think or talk about the love of God, but we cannot fully describe or even understand it. Ephesians 3:19 says that "it is too great to understand fully".

God loved the world (that's you and me) so much that he gave his one and only son for us. Jesus was God's ONLY son - the only one he had. Yet, God sent his son into a strange, hostile culture, knowing that Jesus would be hated, rejected, and even brutally murdered. He did so because that was our only hope of forgiveness, and he loved us that much!

Our response? You choose your own. Each one of us must decide what to do with the incredible gift of God's love through Jesus. For those who repent of their sin and return that love by living a surrendered life to honor him, 1 John 3:1 has great meaning: "See how very much our father loves us, for he calls us his children, and that is what we are!"

Pity, mercy, sacrifice, and adoption. From hopeless to fullness. From guilt to forgiveness, from sin to righteousness.

That is God's love - the greatest love!

IN THE MATTER OF DORIS P. AUSBON, deceased,

IN THE PROBATE COURT OF COFFEE COUNTY,

Alabama DOR offers tips for the 2018 tax season

The Alabama Department of Revenue (ADOR) has a few tips and suggestions to help individuals file their return safely and get refunds as quickly as possible:

FILE EARLY! As soon as taxpayers receive their W-2s, 1099s and other documents, they should file as soon as possible. Filing early can help us get your refund approved earlier.

SAFETY FIRST! ADOR plays an important role in preventing state revenue and your money from ending up in the wrong hands. Fraud detection reviews, accuracy checks, and matching against employer W2s does require a little extra time, but it helps ensure that you get your money rather than fraudsters.

WHERE'S YOUR REFUND? The Alabama Department of Revenue will begin releasing 2017 income tax refunds on March 1, 2018. This will give us time to properly vet and process the returns of early filers, confirm the accuracy of legitimate returns, and filter out fraudulent returns. The best way to track the progress of your refund is our website My Alabama Taxes (www.myalabamataxes.alabama.gov) If you don't have internet access, you can track your refund progress by calling our automated refund system toll free at 1-855-894-7391 or our call center at 1-800-535-9410.

March or April.

FIRST TIME FILERS: It will take additional time for new filers to be validated and entered into our system. Until that time, our Refund Status website won't recognize these taxpayers and will report their returns as "not entered in system." It will take approximately 8-12 weeks to process a first time filer's return.

If the taxpayer received a letter from us asking for more information or to verify identity, the refund will be delayed until we get the requested information and we've been able to review it.

FRAUD DETECTION. To detect and combat tax identity theft, ADOR uses a variety of methods to validate your identity and tax return. To help protect your information and keep your dollars from going to criminals, we may send:

An Identity Confirmation letter that asks you to take a short online quiz or provide copies of documents to verify your identity.

A return verification letter that asks you to verify online whether you or your representative filed the tax return we received.

Accuracy Checks. We stop and review about 3 to 5 percent of individual income tax returns each year to resolve mathematical errors or request missing information.

HOW LONG WILL IT TAKE? The date your return is filed and how your return is filed largely determines when the refund can be issued. For example, electronically filed returns are received and processed significantly faster than returns that are mailed to ADOR. Also, if an error-free return is mailed in January or February, the taxpayer can expect to receive their refund sooner than if the return is filed in

"I'm not disappointed with our numbers," he said. "We were above 95 percent attendance at both schools last year."

He said the issue he sees with how absenteeism was calculated with the prototype report card is that every absence is counted against the school with this, including students off campus on a school-related field trip, excused sickness absences, etc.

Taking all that into account, he said chronic absenteeism affects the schools more than it used to with this report card.

Moseley also said the test used for the academic portions of the report card was the Aspire Test, which is no more now. He said schools now will use a new test for these evaluations for at least the next two years, which means more change.

He said that brings up a new question - "Where are you going to calculate from next year?"

Overall, however, Moseley said he is as pleased as he can be with this report card system being brand new. He said there are things that need to change, but he has full confidence that the state department of education will find the right scenario for this test to make it fit everyone.

"We are working together [the state and school systems] on this, and the state officials are going to come up with the right format for the schools and kids," Moseley said. "This does, however, give us [Elba] a starting point, especially with me coming in fresh as the superintendent at basically the same time this report card was released."

He said the most important thing to remember when looking at these report card numbers is, "one test does not define your school."

"We don't get credit for having an incredible band, a fantastic football team, a year and a half old show choir that is awesome," he said. "They do look some at technology with this, but we have so much more to offer that is not looked at that has to be taken into account."

Moseley said the Elba goal from here is simple - move the score up.

"I want to see our numbers move up, no matter how big or small," he said.

The breakdown of Elba's numbers on the prototype report card was as follows:

The Elba City School System overall score was an 80 for a B ranking.

The five accountability indicators used to attain this score were: Academic Achievement (20 percent), Academic Growth (30 percent), Graduation Rate (30 percent), College and Career Readiness (10 percent), and Chronic Absenteeism (10 percent). Elba was above the state average in three of those categories [graduation rate, college and career readiness, and chronic absenteeism] and was very close to being above on four [academic growth].

For academic achievement, the system scored 53.89 points for 10.78 out of 20 percent; for academic growth, the system scored 85.57 points for 25.67 out of 30 percent; for graduation rate, the system scored 95.40 points for 28.62 out of 30 percent; for college and career readiness, the system scored 68 points for 6.8 out of 10 percent; and for chronic absenteeism, the system scored 20.44 points for 2.04 out of 10 percent.

Elba Elementary School was only rated on three accountability indicators - academic achievement (40%), academic growth (50%), and chronic absenteeism (10%). The overall score for the elementary school was 73 for a C rating, but was above the state average in academic achievement and chronic absenteeism.

For academic achievement, the school scored 61.14 points for 24.46 out of 40 percent; for academic growth, the school scored 81.25 points for 40.63 out of 50 percent; and for chronic absenteeism, the school scored 25 for 2.5 out of 10 percent.

Elba High School was rated on the same five accountability indicators as the system. The high school received an overall score of 80 for a B rating, and was above the state average for academic growth, graduation rate, and college and career readiness.

For academic achievement, the school received 46.56 points for 9.31 out of 20 percent; for academic growth, the school received 89.42 points for 26.83 out of 30 percent; for graduation rate, the school received 95.40 points for 28.62 out of 30 percent; for college and career readiness, the school received 68 points for 6.8 out of 10 percent; and for chronic absenteeism, the school received 15.66 points for 1.57 out of 10 percent.

Looking at the whole picture, Moseley again said he was pleased with Elba's numbers considering this was a prototype report card that no one knew what to expect. He said it showed that the school system is right there in same boat or better than most systems/schools in the area.

"We have dedicated school leaders in place now at the elementary and high schools that I have no doubt will work diligently to make sure we only move up from here," Moseley said. "Again, we are not defined by this one report, and we are pleased with where we are and the goals we have in front of us."

COUNTY

The overall system-wide grade for the Coffee County School System was 84 [B].

Academic achievement accounts for 20 percent of the score and the system received 64.27 points in this category; academic growth accounts for 30 percent of the score and the system received 91.87 points in this category; graduation rate accounts for 30 percent of the score, and the system received 94.20 points in this category; college and career readiness accounts for 10 percent of the score, and the system received 77.00 points in this category; and chronic absenteeism accounts for 10 percent of the score and the system received 18.87 points in this category.

The overall score of 84 was derived from the points in each of those categories based on a formula used by the state.

Looking at the schools individually, New Brockton Elementary School scored an overall 85 (B); New Brockton High School scored an overall 79 (C); Zion Chapel School scored an overall 84 (B); and Kinston School scored an overall 88 (B).

While the high schools are grading on the five accountability indicators [as mentioned above with the system grade], elementary schools are only graded on three - academic achievement (40%), academic growth (50%), and chronic absenteeism (10%).

New Brockton Elementary scored 72.04 points for academic achievement; 95.28 points for academic growth; and 17.01 points for chronic absenteeism to reach the overall score of 85 on the report card.

New Brockton High School scored 47.74 points for academic achievement; 86.42 points for academic growth; 92.40 points for graduation rate; 71 points for college and career readiness; and 14.22 points for chronic absenteeism to reach the overall score of 79 on the report card.

Zion Chapel scored at 64.91 points for academic achievement; 90.53 points for academic growth; 94.20 points for graduation rate; 81 points for college and career readiness; and 22.49 points for chronic absenteeism to reach the overall score of 84 on the report card.

Kinston scored 67.90 points for academic achievement; 95.62 points for academic growth; 98 points for graduation rate; 80 points for college and career readiness; and 18.13 points for chronic absenteeism to reach the overall score of 88 on the report card.

SPORTS

Views From The Pressbox

By Ricky Mularz, Sports Editor

Our baby girl Melanie turned 29 over the weekend and it is sometimes hard to believe that she has made it through high school and college and has now been a teacher/coach for five years at Carroll High School, in Ozark. She has excelled in just about everything she has ever attempted and makes me proud each and every day. She may be closing in on the big 3-0, but she will always be my baby girl.

For what it is worth....

 The Elba Tigers bounced back from an upset loss to Laurel Hill to claim a pair of wins over 3A opponents last week and will enter this week's area tournament filled with confidence and enthusiasm. The Tigers caught fire in the second half to pull away from Opp in a tough road battle, and then overcame a slow start against Straughn to rally and send the seniors out with a win. The Tigers haven't really been clicking on all cylinders in recent action, but have played a lot of games in a short amount of time, and should be ready to go by the time they tip it off in the area tourney.

 The Elba Lady Tigers coasted past winless Opp early in the week and then shocked Straughn in their regular season finale to reach the 10-win plateau for the season. The Lady Tigers have improved almost every night out in recent weeks, as was evident in the win over Straughn, and may still have a couple of surprises left up their sleeves as they get ready for post-season play. Don't count this bunch out!

 The regular season came to a close last week all across the state and teams in the area got in their final tune-ups for post-season play. In boys action, Brantley was upset in its finale to Wicksburg and may not be heading into the tourney brimming with confidence, while Kinston got past Zion Chapel and proved once again it is a team to keep an eye on, and New Brockton and Zion Chapel both continued their season long struggles. Over with the girls, Brantley kept on rolling and has a very good shot at winning its area tourney and being at home in sub-region action, while Kinston struggled due to a rash of injuries and both Zion Chapel and New Brockton continued their struggles. Regular season records mean nothing when the teams hit the tournament trail, and that gives hope to all the teams in the area.

 Rumors have it that interviews for the vacant head football coaching position at Elba High are underway this week, and that a new coach could be named as early as late next week. Over 50 applications have reportedly been received for the post, and while names have not been officially mentioned, the names I have heard include some very talented men from all across the state. Get ready, it won't be long now.

New Brockton Council votes to pay off small bank loan with funds discovered and collected by RDS

by Linda Hodge, Editor

During the monthly meeting Monday evening, Feb. 5, New Brockton Town Council members voted to pay-off a loan on mosquito spraying equipment after a good chunk of unexpected revenue came to the town.

Town Clerk Debbie Andrews explained to council members that RDS [Revenue Discovery Systems] made a deposit into the town's account of approximately $47,000. This was monies RDS discovered were owed in taxes to the town from a construction company, in which RDS did an audit for several years back.

Andrews and Mayor Kathy Holley each said they had checked into this large deposit of funds after it appeared, and it was accurate. Holley said New Brockton was seemingly not the only community to benefit from this.

Therefore, Andrews asked for approval to payoff a loan in the amount of $6,100.11 that was for the mosquito spraying equipment for the town. She said in paying this smaller loan off, it would allow her to double up some on the car loans the town also is paying back and get those paid off earlier too.

Council members voted unanimously to pay off the $6,100.11 loan.

Upon the recommendation of the mayor, council members voted to give two employees a raise.

The first was an employee with the street department who has completed his first 90 days of employment with the town. The mayor recommended a 25 cents per hour raise for this employee, and council members approved it.

The mayor also recommended a $1 per hour raise for the town clerk, effective the next pay period. This too was approved with no opposition.

Presenting the monthly financial report for the town, Andrews noted at the end of January, the town's general fund had a balance of $151,103.93. She also said the total operating funds for all accounts was $268,565.30.

The town's income for the month of January was $98,556.75.

Andrews estimated the regular monthly bills for February to be $12,157.19, and council members voted to approve payment of these bills.

Mayor Holley noted the town offices would be closed Monday, Feb. 19, in observance of Presidents Day. The council will hold its work session for the month on Tuesday, Feb. 20, at 6 p.m.

Also, it was noted the town's beautification committee is planning a BBQ fundraiser for April 14th. The mayor said more information would be provided as details are finalized for this event.

The next New Brockton Town Council meeting is set for Monday, March 5, at 6 p.m.
